CULTURE SHOCK AMERICA

I have identified it from a youtube video I have watched.

Her name is Puri Viera, she is originally from Surabaya and has lived in America for approximately 7 years. He has faced many experiences, and the beginning of his stay in America was quite a shock for him.

1. Date writing format in America In America, most people write dates starting from M/D/Y, while in other countries they write dates starting from D/M/Y, only a few countries apply the M/D/Y date format, namely America, the Philippines, Canada and Republic of Palau.
2. Public toilet doors in America Public toilet doors in America always have gaps on both sides of the door, and there is an empty area under the side of the toilet door which is quite large, making someone who is in the toilet feel embarrassed, insecure, afraid of being seen by people from outside. There is a lot of speculation about why American toilets are made that way and the most reasonable one is, so that they are easy to clean, and to avoid unwanted things when going to the toilet or to avoid sexual activities in the toilet.
3. Mention of toilets in America Still regarding toilets, the term toilet

Culture shock from usa to Indonesian

Being Black in Indonesia is BETTER than in America...this is why!!!

Sheku mans- black people from usa come to visit Indonesia

Experience in Indonesia :

- Being black in Indonesia is perceived as better than in America due to a lack of racial tension and friendliness towards foreigners.
- Indonesia's welcoming attitude, language barriers, and the warmth of its people are highlighted.
- Bandung's beauty, traffic, historical monuments, and geological wonders are explored.
- Indonesian street food, including the controversial durian fruit, is discussed.

Cultural Exploration :

- Journey through Asia and Africa in Bandung, Indonesia, experiencing diverse cultures and historical representations.
- Visit to Asia Africa, showcasing the blend of African and Asian relations over the years.
- Cultural insights into India, Korea, Thailand, and China.

Reflecting on Indonesia's Diversity :

- Emphasis on Indonesia's cultural diversity and the beauty of

CULTURE SHOCK AS AN INDOONESIAN IN LUXEMBOURG TO U

My Name is Putu Meita Damayanti in this opportunity i get a chance to review a video about culture shock about a country a wanted to visit Luxembourg

These are four points may seem insignificant or trivial, but they can have a significant impact on a person's cultural adaptation process. This is because cultural adaptation is not just about learning the new language of a country it also involves adjusting to new physical and social environments that may differ substantially from what a person is used to.

1. Cold weather, for example, can be a significant challenge for someone used to a warmer climate like in the video. In addition to the physical discomfort of cold temperatures, winter weather can limit outdoor activities and social interactions. She said it's not even winter, but it's pretty cold there.
2. Shopping for groceries may also be different in many countries, and some people may be surprised by the services there being on fast and the buses part

Annisa Fitri Nathania (22092229)

Halo, here I will tell you about a YouTuber named Jerome Polin who comes from Surabaya, East Java but he studied in Japan who experienced culture shock while he was studying in Japan.

The culture shock he faced while in Japan included:

1. Restaurants in Japan mostly use Japanese writing, rarely use English.
2. You are not allowed to wear earrings, and if you wear earrings you are considered to be a bad child
3. Japanese eat mostly raw food, for example raw fish like Sashimi
4. Food given at school cannot be taken home so it must be finished or eaten within the school environment
5. Expensive haircuts, the cheapest is 130 thousand rupiah
6. Japanese people rarely shake hands, so they bow to say hello
7. Japanese people really like to take hot baths together, naked with other people, even strangers

That's the culture shock that Jerome Polin conveyed while studying in Japan, especially at Waseda University

Bintang Natalia is an Indonesian woman who has lived in Germany for many years. In this channel, Bintang shares important information about life in Germany, so that it can help many people who need extra information.

5 culture shocks or things that surprised you when you first lived in Germany:

1. Sundays in Germany If you don't know, many shops in Germany are closed on Sundays. So for example, if you want to shop at supermarkets and even minimarkets and clothing stores on Sundays in Germany, only gas stations, restaurants and cafes are open. On Sundays, people in Germany they use their time to rest, relax at home, maybe go to a family place for family time or they go to a restaurant but you won't be able to
